Civic Education Campaigns for Women Living in Rural Areas

Questions and Answers

1. As the timeline proposed is flexible or not? because taking into account the conditions of the pandemic, we estimate possible difficulties with physical activities.

IFES Responds: The timeline is flexible, and dates can be changed based on external factors such as the pandemic, early elections, floods, weather inclement, etc. These factors are outside of your control, and you can highlight them in the attachment A/question G: Risk Analysis and Contingency Plan.

2. Is the location of the press conference to be determined by IFES or by the implementer?

IFES Responds: The applicant will determine the date and the venue.

3. We want to know more details on the communication guidelines in this project, who is responsible for it also.

IFES Responds: The communication strategy will be drafted and implemented by both parties (IFES and the sub-awardee). IFES will schedule a meeting with the subawardee to share the previous communication guidelines regarding the civic education campaigns for rural women, and it will provide the selected NGO with tips and guidelines for the new project.

4. Does this RFA has the flexibility of fixed-price type of contract?

IFES Responds: IFES will determine the type of contract, whether this will be a fixed-price contract or a cost-reimbursable one.
