1. Are you going to specify exactly how many in a sample for each of the 22 districts in Libya? Of course, in relation to IFES previous surveys positive results or shortcomings?

IFES Response: The underlying principle for the distribution of the sample will be probability proportional to size (PPS). However, IFES might want to oversample certain areas, and the final distribution of the 2000 respondents-sample across the 22 districts will be defined in collaboration with the selected service provider prior to the start of data collection.
