UKRAINE'S NEW PARLIAMENT 338 of 450

OVERVIEW

During Ukraine's first post-Soviet parliamentary election on March 27, 1994, nearly 500 international observers monitored the electoral process. Overall, 74.78% of eligible voters turned-out to elect a new Parliament. Due to the high number of registered candidates, 5,833 only 49 of 450 parliament seats were filled.

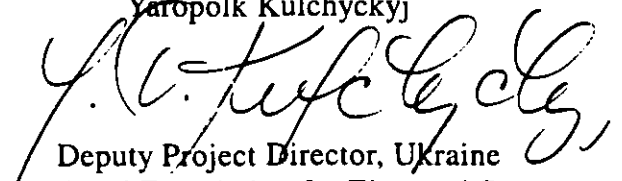

The 38,042,700 registered voters of Ukraine were asked by the Central Election Commission (CEC) of Ukraine to vote once more on April 2,3 and April 9,10, depending on the decision of the constituency electoral commission, (Repeat Voting) set forth in the Election Law, Article 46. Despite predictions of low voter turn-out, nearly 67% of the voters participated in the repeat voting and elected 289 deputies, thus filling a total of 338 seats in parliament.

On April 10, the Chairman of the CEC, Ivan Yemets, announced on television, "our state has a new Parliament." Three days later, the Presidium of the current Ukrainian parliament confirmed that presidential elections would take place on June 26 of this year.

Because many candidates did not meet the standards set forth in the Election Law, 112 seats remain to be filled in the parliament.

Ukraine is currently operating without a new Constitution. Although a new Constitution has been drafted, no progress has been made on its adoption and will be one of many challenges facing the new parliament. The new Ukrainian Parliament is to convene on May 10, 1994, with Chairman Yemets scheduled to open the session.

LAW OF UKRAINE
ON

ELECTIONS OF PEOPLE'S DEPUTIES OF UKRAINE

ARTICLE 48. REPEAT ELECTIONS.

1) Repeat elections shall be conducted in constituency electoral commissions where not more than two candidates for deputy were nominated and no one of them was elected, or where elections were considered not to be conducted, or were declared void.

2) The decision to conduct repeat elections shall be made by the Central Election Commission.

3) Repeat elections shall be fixed no later than one month after the general elections. Voting shall be carried out in the same polling stations and according to the same voter lists compiled for the conduct of the general elections. The nomination and registration of candidates for deputy and other electoral procedure shall be carried out in order as determined by this Law.

4) Candidates who resigned their candidacies or who did not receive the necessary quantity of votes and were not elected in the elections which were held and recognized void cannot be nominated in repeat elections....
